

Universal rules

If it doesn't work, don't do it.

The world is exactly as you perceive it to be.

As within, so without.

People believe you when they see you living it.

There are no coincidences.

You are the sum total of what you understand to be so.

You are what you value.

The walk of a thousand miles begins with the first step.

Each person has a calling that is greater than him or her. Most people resist this idea.

There is no "right way." There is just "this way, today."

The wise person does not know the destination. The wise person does know where he or she is now.

Most wounds are self-inflicted.

The finger that points to the moon is not the moon.

Change happens faster if you lie to yourself.

Take no credit. Cast no blame. Seek to empower others. Enjoy life.

Your mother was right. The two most important words are please and thank you.

Always tell the truth, as you know it. Alter your language so others may hear your truth.

Look wide, then focus narrow.

If you say it's impossible, it is.

One thing at a time.

Stop to notice the violets at your feet.

Take nothing for granted.

No answer comes before its time.

If there is an issue to be resolved, or a problem to be solved, seek a solution, without placing blame.

There are no universal rules. Including these.
